NEWS IN BRIEF

JonOne, Evolution to Oils

He is so well-known, and yet... Born in 1963 in Harlem as John Perello, JonOne has decidedly grown up since he illicitly tagged New York trains at night. In his French 'laboratory', the artist reflects and experiments, adding sand and glue to oil applied to canvas... His compositions delight an ever-growing circle of followers. Around twenty works will be presented at Galerie Rabouan-Moussion, 121 rue Vieille-du-Temple in Paris, until 24 May.

Between 15 and 18 May, antique dealers and gallery owners of the Carré Rive Gauche in Paris are proposing "An object, a history" through a selection of their finest pieces: not only objets d'art, design and paintings, but also furniture, like this Indo-Portuguese travelling cabinet on show at the Tiago gallery. A temporary museum open to everyone!
